Dear Parents/Carers

05.01.2024

As you will know, we send most communications out to you by email now. For a few of you this has meant you have missed some information at times. To help with this we have introduced a whiteboard outside of our main Reception area to let you know when letters are sent, but in addition, we are going to try to help you further by sending out a regular update each Friday.

This way you will know to check your emails every Friday to see what has happened or what is coming up next. As I am already writing to you today, this will start next week on Friday 12th.

There may well be other letters that need to come at other times, and we will continue to write on the whiteboard to let you know to look out for these.

For emergencies only, as it is quite costly, we will continue to use the texting service.

Please make sure to let us know straightaway of any changes to your email addresses or phone numbers.

All our letters are also posted on our website.

The children have enjoyed their first few days back in school. We started off our new theme for the Spring term "Words, words, words!" with a fantastically fun day on Thursday with "Pete the Poet". Be sure to check your Google Classrooms for photos.

All teachers planning will be available on the website for you to view from today. If there are any events or topics you have questions about, please speak to your child's teacher.

A few parents have asked me about World Book day this year, and whether there will be a theme for costumes. It is quite early and I will remind you again nearer the time, but I can tell you that as World book day (7th March) falls just behind World Wildlife day (3rd March), we are planning a wildlife theme for the first half of that week. Each class will have a different animal or theme for dressing up. The teachers will be planning this over the next two weeks and we will let you know in the next couple of weeks.

Please see additional letter re Reception children's measurement checks.

As always, if you have any questions or need any help, please let us know.

Thank you.

Yours sincerely
